

PAID NOT TO WORK:

Federal Money Is Keeping Wisconsin Workers at Home

THE PROBLEM: NEW FEDERAL PROVISIONS HAVE GREATLY EXPANDED UNEMPLOYMENT AND OTHER BENEFITS

Congress has doubled down on this benefits expansion with a $300 weekly UI bonus combined with tax credits and other benefits.

There are still twice as many Wisconsinites on UI rolls compared to before the pandemic.

THE REALITY: INCREASED FEDERAL BENEFITS PAY TO STAY HOME

Low-income Wisconsinites can receive $3,726 per month ($44,712 per year) in cash or cash-equivalent benefits by remaining unemployed.

How much does it pay to be unemployed?

$21 per hour for full time work.

These Wisconsinites could receive another $1,339 per month ($16,068 per year) in non-cash benefits, such as newly boosted premium subsidies, for a total of $5,065 per month ($60,780 per year).

More than 60 percent of these cash benefits are due to the UI payments and the UI bonus.

Cash/Cash Equivalent Programs
UI Bonus	$1,300
Average State UI	$940
Child Tax Credits	$600
Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC)	$502
Food Stamps	$384
MONTHLY TOTAL	$3,726

Based on a low-income Wisconsinite with two children under age six.

A Wisconsin worker earning minimum wage would have to work 24 hours a day for nearly seven days a week to equal the total value of all benefits.

THE IMPACT: THE BENEFITS FROM STAYING HOME ARE MORE LUCRATIVE THAN WORKING

Unemployed Wisconsinites can receive more in cash and cash-equivalent benefits by staying home instead of returning to work.

New Biden-issued guidance allows even more Wisconsinites to remain on unemployment and refuse work offers.

Wisconsin businesses are desperate for workers, with more than 134,000 jobs currently unfilled.

	Earnings from Work	Monthly Cash Benefits to Stay Home	Percent Difference
Median Monthly Earnings of a Full-Time Wisconsin Worker	$3,430	$3,726	8.6 percent
Monthly Earnings of a Full-Time Wisconsin Worker Earning Minimum Wage	$1,257	$3,726	196.4 percent

THE BOTTOM LINE

Federal lawmakers should reject additional benefit expansions.

Federal policymakers should push back on Biden's welfare-for-all agenda.

If the UI bonuses don't expire on time, those on unemployment could receive extra UI benefits for roughly 80 weeks—pushing the debate to 2022.

To unleash the economic recovery, new and enhanced benefit programs—like the federal UI bonus and child tax credit—should be allowed to expire on time.
