Wisconsin State Representative William Penterman: Work advances communities forward

Wisconsin State Representative William Penterman has seen firsthand how the labor shortage affects businesses in his home state. Businesses are struggling to find good workers despite offering bonuses and incentives.

Here, Rep. Penterman discusses the need to get people back to work. Despite the end of the federal unemployment bonus, he argues it has lasting effects on America's workforce. Work should be encouraged, not disincentivized—work helps to advance our communities forward.

“[Work] helps advance our state and our community and our culture forward.”
