Arkansas State Rep. Kendon Underwood on removing barriers to entrepreneurship

Arkansas State Representative Kendon Underwood has seen how unnecessary government regulations often mean business owners aren't able to expand and grow. He's working to help remove barriers and stop overregulation, especially for home-based businesses in Arkansas.

Here, Rep. Underwood discusses how government restrictions stifle growth. Local governments in Arkansas placed unreasonable restrictions on home-based businesses that made it hard for entrepreneurs to thrive. By removing these restrictions, Arkansans will have more opportunities to create new businesses.

“Typically, when the government overregulates things, it stifles growth.”
