Why does Alli love FGA?

"I believe in FGA's mission and their work to better Americans' lives by focusing on issues that really matter. FGA has a proven track record of removing barriers to work and releasing people from government dependency."

Alli Fick is the research director at the Foundation for Government Accountability (FGA).

Prior to joining FGA, Alli was a certification project manager at Hart InterCivic, an attorney for the Texas Secretary of State, Elections Division, and an associate counsel for the American Center for Law & Justice. She holds a Bachelor of Science from the University of Florida and a Juris Doctor from Regent University School of Law.

Alli first experienced the value of work while teaching tennis. To her, work is the path to self-sufficiency and allows people to achieve the American Dream.

When she's not working, she enjoys spending time with family, reading, and cooking. A fan of the Florida Gators, Alli lives in Austin, Texas.
