

On the Street With FGA: Inflation “Reduction” Act

What does the average American think about the “Inflation Reduction Act”?

FGA asked—and the answer, sadly, wasn’t surprising. In Nashville, Tennessee, FGA took the question directly to locals and visitors, who said what most people are thinking—inflation is a major problem, especially when it comes to groceries, gas, and everyday life—and it’s not going to improve unless we do something about it.

Some of the men and women interviewed expect inflation to continue, and another summed up their concerns for the future: “Unless we all vote in November and get some sanity back to our country, I’m afraid we’re in big trouble.”

To learn more about reforms that could fight inflation and cut unnecessary spending, visit TheFGA.org.

Watch the full interview at:
TheFGA.org/videos

