

MAC WARNER

WEST VIRGINIA SECRETARY OF STATE

How Are West Virginia's Elections So Clean?

Amid nationwide concerns about voting ranging from who is in office to how elections are administered, West Virginia has made a name for itself with clean and problem-free elections. Secretary of State Mac Warner gets into the details of how that's possible, along with his view on ranked choice voting and the best and most secure way to vote.

"Election integrity is really the centerpiece... of a lot of the division that's right now in America... until we solve that, we're not going to pull this country back together."
